

Northwest artist Randy Martin has been capturing his native home for over 30 years through his paintings and woodcarvings. Randy is able to share his love of nature through his carvings of North American wildlife. While his birds have received local Northwest acclaim from the ribbons and awards he has received at shows, his individual feather jewelry is available through Galleries and gift shops in the western United States.